BED WOOD

Our bed wood is smoothly finished and precision routed, with extra recessed groove to lock in the metal rails, keeping wood straight and true, with rails at just the right height. The top edges of bed rails bear the friction of loads sliding in the box, so wood damage is kept to a minimum during regular usage. The bed to frame holes are countersunk, and drilled offset (not in the center) so the special washers lay flush to the wood surface, and carriage bolt heads bear the friction of moving cargo. The offset in the wood and washer lock the bolt in place so that the assembler can tighten the nuts from below without the washer and bolt turning. If you think you can prepare your wood to this precision, you better be an excellent carpenter!
